Opening Questions

- What stood out to you in the sermon?
- What insights did you gain?
- What questions did it raise?

John 1:19-34

- Why do you think the religious leaders were so concerned with who John the Baptist was? What does that reveal about their expectations of the Messiah?
- How does John's testimony about Jesus build a bridge between the Old Testament and the New? What continuity do you see?
- Why is it significant that John the Baptist calls everyone—religious leaders, ordinary people, and sinners—to repentance in the same way? What does this show us about equality before God?
- John says he is “not worthy to untie [Jesus'] sandals” (v. 27). How does this attitude contrast with how the religious elite viewed themselves? What does it say about human status in God's kingdom?
- How does John's description of Jesus contrast with the world's typical view of power, status, or salvation?

The Great Leveler | The Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world.

- “Behold, the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world!” (v. 29) — How does this one statement challenge both self-righteousness and despair?
- How does the idea that all have sinned—and all need the Lamb of God—flatten human hierarchies of morality or worthiness?
- What social, racial, or religious distinctions does the gospel break down according to this passage and the broader message of Scripture?
- How might understanding the gospel as a great leveler affect how we treat others—especially those who are very different from us?
- In a world obsessed with identity, credentials, and influence, how does the identity of John (as merely a “voice”) model gospel humility?
- How can we ensure that our church or small group reflects the inclusive, leveling nature of the gospel rather than worldly categories of importance?
