The Inventor of the Blood Bank

Dr. Charles Drew 1904 - 1950

Dr. Charles Drew was a surgeon and medical researcher who discovered how to dry plasma and reconstitute it, allowing for longer storage. Blood plasma stores became known as “blood banks.” During WWII, Dr. Drew organized a blood drive that collected about 15,000 pints of blood to send overseas for injured British soldiers. He also helped the American Red Cross set up their blood bank for the U.S. military. However, his time there was short. He opposed their refusal to accept blood from Black donors for white soldiers. They later agreed to allow it, but only for Black soldiers. Frustrated by the racist policy, Dr. Drew resigned.

He was also the first African American to graduate from Columbia University and the first to serve on the American Board of Surgery.

Mrs. Rosa Parks

Happy Belated Birthday Mrs. Parks

Rosa Parks (born February 4, 1913) was a pivotal Civil Rights activist best known for her courageous refusal to give up her bus seat in 1955. Contrary to the common myth that she was simply tired, Parks declared she was "tired of giving in." A trained seamstress and the NAACP secretary, her act of defiance sparked the Montgomery Bus Boycott and marked her as a seasoned activist.

Following her arrest, both she and her husband lost their jobs, prompting them to move to Detroit, Michigan. Later, Parks was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom and the Congressional Gold Medal and became the first woman to lie in honor at the U.S. Capitol.
