A NEW YEAR FOR ASIAN MISSIONS

On February 15, the College Church hosts its annual Spring Festival to celebrate the Lunar New Year, and our ministry to Asians steps into a future that holds both uncertainty and promise.

The ministry, dating most recently from the late 1990s with the work of Milo Hadwin and others, began a new chapter in 2019 when two events converged: an influx of Asian students to Harding University and the arrival in Searcy of Henry Li, a convert who wanted to bless his homeland's people with the Good News. Mentored by Ed Higginbotham, Howard Norton, Gordon Hogan, and Gary Jackson (missionary and HU professor), Henry grew into that role. Since 2021, he has been affiliated with College Church, though his salary comes from outside donations.

During this time, Henry has done the daily work of preparing sermons for the group's Sunday morning Zoom services, leading multiple weekday and weekend Bible studies, and, with wife Julie's help, ministering to the hundreds of Asian residents in the Searcy area.

Most of his work occurs online, reaching Asians in the U.S., Belarus, Canada, and Japan. Sunday services feature a traditional worship period followed by discussion among the online participants.

Entering 2026, the ministry faces challenges. To begin with, its original major target group is now a fraction of the 2021 number. At the same time, Henry must navigate dense bureaucracy to obtain a green card in order to remain in the U.S.—in a difficult time for immigrants. On top of that, the task of raising an adequate salary has become harder.

However, those involved in the work seem willing to do what it takes.

Ministry leader John Reese, a veteran missionary, is developing a new strategy. He wants to use the internet to reach Asians scattered across the globe. The plan centers on a web site to be known as Educational and Intercultural Services (EIS), a "popular information center" that with "aggressive advertising" can attract Asians outside their homelands, offer practical help, and link them to sites like World Bible School.

The ultimate aim is an internet-based network of Asian converts supporting one another and influencing family and friends back home—a global digital space where disciples can make disciples.

It's an ambitious plan, one that needs our prayers and support. But visitors to the group's Sunday morning online worship can see a small, dedicated core of spiritually equipped Christians already going into "all nations."

THE MINISTRY FAIR, WEEK 1

This week, half of our Bible classes will be invited to the Ministry Fair (click here to see the Bible Class Rotation Schedule). After Bible class, everyone is invited to visit the Fair with their families or individually. To get prepared, here is a Ministry Fair checklist to review. Consider which booths you will visit, which ministry you will sign up for, and what assistance you might require to get signed into the College Church app, Directory app, or otherwise get "plugged in" to College Church. Also, we are asking that every member (7th grade to adults) fill out the Ministry Fair Questionnaire by the end of February to update directory information and ministry involvement in our new system.

THE 3RD ANNUAL COLLEGE GAMES

Saturday, February 21, the College Ministry will have a day full of fun, laughter, and intergenerational connections. Teams of four college students will participate in a series of creative challenges throughout the day at homes of College Church members before gathering for pizza and awards Saturday evening. This is a day of lasting memories and church connections for college students and families alike—but we need your help! If you would be willing to host or help with games, please sign up here. Grant has updated this link for those of you who tried to sign up earlier. He asked that if you filled out the form with the link in the bulletin, please do so again using this link.
